Available

We are pleased to announce the launch of the 9th Annual Privacy & Data Protection Summit, which will take place on the 23rd - 24th of October 2025 in Brussels, Belgium. Building on the success of its previous editions, this year's summit will explore the latest advancements and emerging trends in privacy and data protection, focusing on practical strategies to tackle evolving privacy challenges faced by organizations today. From harnessing AI-powered privacy automation and navigating a dynamic regulatory landscape to identifying and mitigating privacy risks, the summit will cover crucial topics like aligning legal frameworks for privacy and security, refining breach management protocols, enhancing compliance, and addressing third-party risks. Join us for two days of thought-provoking discussions, cutting-edge solutions, and invaluable networking with industry peers, while gaining insights to navigate the complexity of privacy and data protection.

Key Practical Learning Points

- Navigating Global Privacy Regulations to Manage a Fragmented Legal Landscape
- Utilizing AI-Driven Privacy Automation to Enhance Data Governance
- Navigating Cross-Border Data Transfers While Balancing Privacy and Security
- Aligning GDPR and NIST Frameworks to Strengthen Privacy and Security Compliance
- Building Resilience in the Face of Data Breaches by Strengthening Response and Recovery Strategies
- Balancing Privacy and Transparency in Automated Systems
- Effectively Managing Third-Party Risk to Protect Your Business and Uphold Compliance
- Identifying and Mitigating Hidden Risks in Data Protection Non-Compliance
- Regulating Biometric Data to Ensure Privacy Protection and Stay Compliant with Changing Laws

AI and Data Anonymization:
Ensuring Privacy in Analytics

As AI-powered analytics grow, ensuring data privacy is more critical than ever. This session explores how anonymization techniques—like differential privacy, federated learning, and synthetic data—can protect sensitive information while preserving analytical value. We'll examine regulatory drivers, practical use cases, and strategies to balance compliance, performance, and trust in AI systems.

10:30 Case Study: Law Enforcement Access to Data Held by Private Companies - Striking the Right Balance

- Examines the tension between privacy and public safety
- Highlights legal challenges in cross-border data requests
- Explores oversight and cooperation frameworks
- Reviews evolving corporate and regulatory practices

11:00 Morning Coffee and Networking Break 11:30 Case Study: Navigating the Global Privacy Maze: Corporate Strategies for a Fragmented Legal Environment

From building unified privacy frameworks to operationalizing local compliance, the focus is shifting toward sustainable, tech-enabled solutions. Explore how automation supports risk management, consent tracking, and data subject rights, while aligning privacy initiatives with broader business goals. Real-world insights will highlight how to balance innovation with regulation, manage third-party and cross-border data risks, and position privacy as a competitive advantage—not just a compliance requirement.

12:00 Case Study: The EU Data Act: A New Era of Data Protection and Business Growth

- The EU Data Act: Introduction. Key definitions. Scope and objectives.
- Compliance and Operational Adjustments: Focused on banking sector and how banks are required to adapt their internal data governance structures, ensuring secure data portability, and comply with new obligations regarding data sharing.
- Opportunities for Growth and Innovation: Considering objectives of the new EU Data Act, how to leverage the data for tailored offerings, process automation, and improve participation in a broader data-driven ecosystem.

13:00 Business Lunch BALANCING PRIVACY AND TECHNOLOGY:
EXCELLING IN THE AGE OF AI14:00 Case Study: Bridging NIS2 and GDPR: Unlocking Synergies for Resilient and Compliant Data Security

The NIS 2 Directive and GDPR share a common goal: strengthening digital resilience and data protection. This session explores how GDPR compliance—especially in data governance and breach notification—can support NIS 2 readiness. Both require incident reporting (72 hours under GDPR, 24 under NIS 2) and third-party risk management. We'll show how GDPR's data mapping and RoPA processes help meet NIS 2's asset identification and risk classification needs. Overlapping governance requirements—like executive accountability and training—create opportunities for integrated strategies. Aligning efforts reduces duplication, improves oversight, and enables a unified approach to regulatory risk and cybersecurity compliance.

14:30 Case Study: Embedding Responsible AI Principles into Complex Data EcosystemsWhat's at Stake:

AI is only as trustworthy as the data—and governance—behind it. In large, complex data environments, embedding responsible AI principles is no longer optional; it's essential for compliance, ethical use, and business sustainability.

What You'll Learn:

- How to operationalize fairness, transparency, and accountability in AI models
- Best practices for aligning AI development with data governance, privacy, and security
- Techniques for identifying and mitigating bias within diverse, distributed datasets
- Ways to balance innovation speed with regulatory and ethical guardrails

A Comprehensive Approach to Building a Robust Data Protection Technology Stack

Modern data protection demands more than policies—it requires a resilient, scalable tech stack that supports global compliance while enabling business agility. Explore how to combine data discovery, classification, automated risk assessments, and real-time monitoring into an integrated privacy infrastructure.

09:50 Case Study: Building Resilient Privacy Programs for the AI and Digital Era

We'll examine strategies for integrating privacy by design into AI systems, managing algorithmic transparency, and aligning governance frameworks with evolving global laws. Attendees will learn how to operationalize privacy in dynamic environments—balancing agility and automation with control and accountability. Real-world examples will highlight how leading organizations are embedding privacy into product development, data ecosystems, and cross-functional decision-making. Whether you're scaling an existing program or starting from scratch, this session offers practical insights to strengthen privacy resilience in a fast-moving digital world.

10:30 Case Study: The Compliance–Confidentiality Paradox:
Mitigating Exposure of Protected
Know-How in a Regulated Data Economy

The EU Data Act ushers in a new era of mandated data access and sharing—but with it comes a critical tension between compliance and the protection of protected know-how. As organizations face growing demands to disclose data to users, partners, and regulators, the risk of inadvertently exposing proprietary methodologies, confidential business logic, or commercially sensitive datasets is escalating.

Office, Ethics and Regulatory Compliance
Nokia

Hannah is the Global Head of Privacy, Data and Cyber Regulatory Office at Nokia. Hannah is responsible for all aspects of Nokia's global data protection and privacy programs (legal, compliance and operations) as well as for the global provision of legal advice on the full range of privacy and cybersecurity legal issues, including cybersecurity regulatory compliance and incident management, data and digitalization, artificial intelligence, data entanglement in the context of M&A, and data retention.

Hannah's core competencies include the architecture, management and oversight of data governance programs and strategy, focusing on privacy, ethical use of data, international data sharing, and cyber incident mitigation and management. Hannah is focused on facilitating and driving strategic business initiatives by enabling dynamic, pragmatic, and innovative use of data, with societal, individual and environmental risk mitigation at the forefront, with a strong belief in the ability of technology to solve for compliance, and the opportunities that come from collaboration, curiosity and respect across disciplines.

Claus D. Ulmer

Senior Vice President Group Privacy
Deutsche Telekom

Claus Ulmer will elaborate on the necessary enhancement of a company's privacy management system due to the constantly accelerating digitization. He will show what changes in functional responsibilities are necessary to integrate data privacy in the strategic planning of a company and vice versa. The interconnection between business leaders and the data privacy organization does support and enhance faster rollout of IT solutions and products.

Establishing a Privacy Trend Radar will help to keep the upcoming to-dos under control.
