Autonomous Legal Ops:
Orchestrating People, Processes, and Agents

As AI agents mature from pilots to production, legal operations must evolve from isolated automations to coordinated "agentic" systems. This session shows how to design an operating model that choreographs people, processes, and agents across intake, contracts, e-billing, and discovery—while preserving control, compliance, and client trust. We'll cover orchestration patterns, human-in-the-loop checkpoints, safety and governance, and the metrics that prove value. Attendees leave with a blueprint to launch—or level up—autonomous legal ops without sacrificing accountability.

The Legal Innovation Stack:
Ops, Data, CLM, and AI in Practice

How do you modernize a global Legal & Public Affairs function without slowing the business? This case study traces Booking.com's multi-year rebuild from fragmented tools to an engineered legal platform: API-first CLM with a normalized contract data model and clause library; playbook-as-code with automated risk scoring and fallbacks; event-driven workflows integrated with Jira/ServiceNow; and a governed LLM layer (RAG over precedents, prompt policies, human-in-the-loop, audit telemetry).

Landing Legal Ops at KLM:
How KLM Transformed High Volume
Litigation Through Innovation and AI

At KLM, Legal Operations took off in one of the most demanding areas of legal work: high-volume passenger litigation. What started as a pilot has grown into a transformation of how legal delivers value — blending technology, data, and human insight. Key takeaways include:

- How to introduce Legal Ops in a traditional, high-pressure environment
- Using automation and AI to scale legal capacity and bring work back in-house
- Embedding process excellence and data insights into daily operations
- Leading change through curiosity, courage, and connection

A practical story of how KLM's legal team turned Legal Ops from an idea into a powerful engine for smarter, more strategic work.

From Pilot to Daily Practice:
Scaling GenAI Across the Legal Function

Scaling GenAI across the legal function is a multi-step journey, far from a simple technology rollout. Early pilots often spark excitement, but broader adoption reveals real barriers: limited awareness, unclear value for daily work, legal and ethical concerns, and resistance to change. Success depends on more than just tools; it requires targeted upskilling, robust governance, and a focus on practical, measurable use cases that can be embedded into core processes. Progress is incremental: some teams embrace AI quickly, while others need time and support to build trust and skills. This session shares lessons learned, pitfalls to avoid, and strategies for moving from isolated pilots to sustainable, function-wide GenAI adoption.

Architecting Scalable Legal Tech Ecosystems: Enterprise Architecture for Modern Legal Operations

Modern legal departments depend on technology that can scale, integrate and evolve as quickly as their regulatory and operational demands. Building such an ecosystem requires a clear architectural vision — one that connects strategy, applications, data flows, and governance into a coherent, future-ready framework.

Automating Legal Work
Without Legal Automation

- Why: remove bottlenecks — lawyers focus on exceptions
- How: embed rules/metadata into business tools + parameterised templates
- Controls: auditable trails, escalation gates, spot-checks
- Measure: cycle-time ↓, exceptions ↓, satisfaction ↑

Translating Legal KPIs into Business
Impact that Fuels Strategic Decisions

Attendees will learn how to translate legal data into strategic insights that inform executive decision-making, support resource allocation, and enhance cross-department collaboration. Through practical examples, the session will cover how to:

- Select KPIs that align with corporate goals and stakeholder expectations;
- Build data narratives that connect legal outcomes to financial and operational success;
- Use metrics to drive continuous improvement, transparency, and strategic influence within the organization.

From Complexity to Clarity: Embedding
Legal Design in Legal Operations Strategy

This session explores how embedding legal design principles into operational strategy can transform how legal teams deliver services, communicate with business stakeholders, and drive innovation. Attendees will learn how to simplify workflows, visualize information for clarity, and create user-friendly legal tools that enhance collaboration and decision-making. By turning complexity into clarity, legal operations can become more accessible, impactful, and strategically aligned with business goals.

16:20 PANEL DISCUSSION 🗣️

Robots, Routines, and Results: Automating Legal Ops Without Losing the Human

Legal operations teams are under pressure to do more with less—yet "automation" can often feel like a black box or a buzzword. This panel takes a practical look at what actually works. Senior leaders across legal ops, product, and privacy will break down where automation is delivering real, measurable outcomes today and where human expertise still needs to stay firmly in the loop.

We will explore concrete use cases such as intake management, NDAs, matter triage, outside counsel billing, and discovery workflows, discussing what drives the biggest efficiency gains and how teams evaluate success. Panelists will also touch on the operational challenges that come with deploying automation, including adoption, data quality, and aligning tools with existing processes, helping attendees understand how to identify the right opportunities and avoid common pitfalls.

AI Governance for Legal Workflows:
Structure, Control, and Measurement

We will examine structural approaches for integrating AI into legal operations, from contract review to compliance monitoring, while maintaining alignment with regulatory standards and ethical obligations. Attendees will learn practical strategies to establish control mechanisms — including risk assessment, oversight protocols, and human-in-the-loop safeguards — that balance innovation with legal responsibility. The presentation will also highlight methods for defining and tracking success metrics, enabling organizations to measure performance, mitigate bias, and continuously improve AI-enabled processes. By the end of the session, participants will be equipped with actionable insights to govern AI adoption in legal contexts with confidence and precision.

The Intersection of Legal, Compliance,
and Technology: A New Model for Integrity

- Re-architect the legal & compliance domain into a unified operating model that enables proactive advisory, real-time insight and agile response
- Deploy technology not as a panacea, but as an enabler of transparency, measurement and risk-informed decision-making—transforming compliance from cost-center to business value driver
- Build a foundation of "integrity by design" — embedding ethical and regulatory guard-rails into global processes, digital workflows and change programmes, so that integrity becomes a lens through which all legal and compliance activity is viewed
- Lead the change management challenge: how to align people, process and platform globally in a way that drives consistency, scalability and adaptability, rather than forcing standardisation at the expense of local relevance

Collaboration at Scale: Enhancing Team
Performance in Modern Legal Operations

Modern legal teams need a pragmatic framework for scaling collaboration that integrates process design, technology enablement, and behavioral norms across five pillars: (1) standardized intake and triage, (2) shared matter workspaces with role-based visibility, (3) codified playbooks and reusable templates, (4) metrics for continuous improvement, and (5) governance that balances speed with risk and compliance. Through scenarios in commercial contracting, litigation support, and regulatory change, we show how automation, AI-assisted drafting, and integrated knowledge repositories reduce cycle time and rework while improving stakeholder experience.

Change by Default:
Building a Culture That Upgrades Itself

Most legal teams change by exception—only when pain is acute. This session flips the script: how to build a legal function that continually upgrades itself—quietly, predictably, and without heroics. You'll learn how to convert skeptics into co-designers, sequence a 90-day improvement backlog, and embed AI and automation with human checkpoints so quality and compliance rise together. We'll show how to hardwire lightweight rituals (weekly "risk & rework" huddles, decision logs, kill-criteria), productize services with clear SLAs and tiering, and use metrics lawyers trust—latency, defect rate, and risk avoided—to steer work. The result: a legal org where improvement is the default path, not a special project.
