Customer-Centric Revenue Management: Rethinking Pricing Models for Marketplaces

In today's competitive digital economy, successful platforms must move beyond transactional pricing and adopt models that reflect evolving customer expectations. This session will explore how shifting from seller-focused fees to buyer-based monetisation can unlock growth while preserving marketplace trust. Drawing on my experience leading the transformation of eBay UK's consumer business pricing model - a change that created $150M+ in incremental annual $\,$ revenue opportunity - I will share lessons on balancing customer value, marketplace dynamics, and business objectives.

Delivering Higher Growth & Profitability At DHL Express By Getting Pricing Into The Heart Of The Business

How DHL is moving pricing from being a back-office function, setting and $% \left(1\right) =\left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right)$ enforcing policies and creating spreadsheets, into a true business-oriented and customer facing consulting group, directly supporting commercial teams in negotiations and using data analytics and value-based pricing strategies to maximize growth, yield and customer satisfaction. The presentation will also cover how DHL has developed a world-class costing and profitability system providing critical data for 200+ countries - a massive challenge in a service industry with high fixed costs, i.e. planes. We will examine the difference between knowing the cost and relying on cost-plus pricing. Think Global, Act Local!

WORKSHOP O

A Practical Implementation of Value and Margin Extraction, from Concept to KPI

- First, I will briefly talk about the concept of Value and Margin Extraction, how to apply it to a single product or a solution. We will go through an end-to-end example of the application of value and margin extraction to a mock-up business; from setting a realistic target per product and customer to aligning the total expected value extraction to sales targets.
- We will continue by sketching the setup of value and margin extraction to your own businesses and discussing with your neighbors.
- In the last part of the workshop, we will go through some of your sketches and answer questions.
