3RD ESG & SUSTAINABILITY REPORTING SUMMIT

HOTEL EUROSTARS
BERLIN, GERMANY

5-6 JUNE 2025 | CEST

We are pleased to announce the launch of the 3rd ESG & Sustainability Reporting Summit that will take place on the 5th - 6th of June 2025 in Berlin, Germany. Following the success of the past two editions, this event will focus on the latest regulations, the transformative impact of technology on ESG reporting models, the evolving landscape of global ESG compliance, strategies to mitigate greenwashing, data transparency, real-time ESG monitoring, the shift toward verified disclosures, and enhancing organizational strategies to foster an ESG-first culture that drives business growth while addressing emerging challenges. This cross-industry event will bring together experts in ESG, sustainability, governance, controlling, reporting, and compliance from global brands to share practical examples and innovative solutions for measuring, collecting, and reporting ESG data effectively, while meeting regulatory requirements and stakeholder expectations. Join us to learn, network, gain actionable insights, and empower your organization toward a more responsible and resilient future.

09:00 Opening Address from the Event Chair

09:10 Networking Bingo

STREAMLINING ESG REPORTING
AND REGULATORY COMPLIANCE09:50 Case Study: The Business Case for Technology in ESG Reporting and Compliance

Digital tools are essential for businesses to streamline ESG reporting and ensure compliance with global standards. This session will explore the business case for technology and how advanced digital solutions – including AI, cloud platforms and automation – are transforming ESG data collection, analysis and reporting. Attendees will learn how these tools improve efficiency, accuracy and transparency in tracking ESG performance while simplifying the complexities of regulatory compliance. The discussion will highlight best practices for seeking approval to invest in digital tools and walk through a typical business case.

Scott Lane
CEO and Founder
Speeki

10:30 Case Study: CSRD Transformation: Turning
Compliance into Competitive Advantage

The Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) is more than a regulatory shift—it's a game-changer in how businesses approach sustainability. This session dives into the transformative power of CSRD incl. EU Taxonomy, illustrating how companies can turn compliance into a strategic advantage. Explore key strategies for aligning with the directive, leveraging transparency to build trust, and driving innovation to position your organization as a sustainability leader in a rapidly evolving landscape.

Thomas Knobloch
Corporate Head of Sustainability
Reporting and Controlling
Siemens

11:00 Morning Coffee and Networking Break 11:30 Case Study: The Interplay Between Sustainability
Disclosures and Due Diligence:
A Focus on CSRD, EU Taxonomy, and CS3D

As sustainability expectations intensify, businesses are required to adopt more robust frameworks for reporting their environmental, social, and governance (ESG) performance. The discussion will explore how the CSRD and EU Taxonomy intersect with due diligence practices, emphasizing how these regulations guide companies in identifying, managing, and mitigating sustainability-related risks in their supply chains and operations. We will also examine the implications of CS3D, which aims to ensure companies are conducting thorough sustainability assessments and actively addressing adverse human rights and environmental impacts.

Stephan Geiger
Partner, Head Advisory – Climate
Change and Sustainability Services
EY

12:00 Case Study: Legal Considerations for Verified ESG Disclosures

- Regulatory Requirements: Overview of key regulations and standards governing ESG disclosures, including emerging reporting frameworks and expectations from investors and regulators.
- Legal Risks: Analysis of potential legal pitfalls, such as liability for inaccurate or misleading ESG reports.
- Verification and Transparency: Emphasis on the role of independent audits, transparent data collection, and verifiable processes to ensure the credibility of ESG reporting.
- Board and Supervisory Duties: Explanation of directors' and supervisory board members' responsibilities to oversee ESG strategy and compliance, including personal accountability and potential liability for non-compliant disclosures.
- Best Practices and Case Studies: Highlighting effective ESG disclosure strategies and illustrating real-world examples of how companies manage compliance, transparency, and stakeholder engagement successfully.

Katharina Stüber
Partner
Baker McKenzie

12:30 Case Study: Designing a Scalable ESG Reporting
Framework for Global Operations

This presentation provides actionable insights into designing a scalable ESG reporting system that meets diverse regulatory demands while aligning with global sustainability goals. Attendees will learn how to integrate cross-border data, leverage digital tools for consistency and accuracy, and develop processes that balance local compliance with global strategic priorities. Discover how to future-proof your ESG framework to support growth, enhance stakeholder trust, and lead in the era of transparent and impactful sustainability practices.

Claudia Huegel
Senior Director Corporate Responsibility,
Head of ESG Rating & Reporting
Lufthansa

13:00 Business Lunch EFFECTIVE REPORTING FRAMEWORKS
FOR SUSTAINABLE GROWTH14:00 Case Study: Quo Vadis ESG-Regulation in Europe?

ESG regulation will significantly increase the level of regulation in many industries. But this has also attracted criticism and led to political considerations to reduce the regulatory pressure. But what do the changes being discussed mean for companies and the people in companies responsible for ESG? What does it mean in terms of the full range of ESG regulations? How can companies position themselves now?

Alexander Dohmen
Senior Lead Sustainability Law
Zalando

14:30 Case Study: Moving Beyond Compliance: Transparent
Reporting for Business Transformation

In today's dynamic business environment, organizations are rethinking their approach to sustainability. The EU's Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD) represents an important step toward standardizing how companies communicate their environmental and social impact, aiming at more transparency and comparability across firms. But sustainability leadership extends far beyond regulatory compliance. Forward-thinking organizations recognize that meaningful impact requires a more comprehensive approach that harnesses business as a force for positive societal change. How can companies undergoing core business transformation use voluntary disclosures to complement emerging mandatory requirements to increase transparency, accountability and create lasting value for stakeholders, communities, and the environment?

Anisha Teresa George
Manager Sustainability Reporting
& ESG Performance
Philip Morris International

15:00 Afternoon Tea and Networking Break 15:20 Case Study: Double Materiality Assessment:
Beyond the CSRD Disclosure Obligation

- Double Materiality Assessment can and should be integrated with due diligence impact assessment, corporate strategic priorities identification and enterprise risks identification
- This significantly lowers the implementation burden of new sustainability regulations and leading voluntary disclosures and places sustainability opportunities and risks at the center of corporate strategic decisions
- It requires organizational changes and upskilling across different functions as well as a leadership team with a sufficient level of sustainability knowledge and maturity

Karin Simondon
Head of ESG & Corporate Responsibility
Ramboll

15:50 Case Study: Driving Sustainable Impact:
Integrating ESG Controlling and Reporting

External reporting is important for compliance and transparency, but only if ESG data is used for internal reporting, steering, and management incentivization will it have a lasting and sustainable impact on a truly responsible business. Embedding ESG into the core of decision-making is what truly drives meaningful change. This alignment ensures that sustainability goals are not just communicated externally but actively pursued and measured internally.

A Strategist's Best Friend: How to Effectively Get the Most Out of a Targeted Climate Risk Analysis

- Legislation, such as TCFD, CSRD, or EU-Taxonomy, requires businesses in Europe and beyond to analyse climate-related risks.
- This is useful as a significant share of GDP is at risk of being lost due to the consequences of climate change.
- A data-driven analysis of physical risks can be a simple way to increase the resilience of companies.
- Acting as early as possible will be key to mitigating climate risks and avoiding financial damages.

12:00 INTERACTIVE SESSION 💬

ESG Metrics in Action: Measuring What Matters

In this interactive session, participants will explore how to identify and measure the most critical ESG metrics that drive meaningful impact. Through group exercises, attendees will assess various industry-specific metrics, debate their relevance, and work collaboratively to define the most important criteria for transparent reporting. A live polling session will gather audience insights, providing a dynamic discussion on aligning ESG metrics with corporate goals while ensuring accountability and accuracy. This session aims to empower attendees with the tools and frameworks needed to measure what truly matters in ESG performance.

12:30 Case Study: 🔍

Dealing with the Data Gaps in ESG Reporting: Methodologies and Best Practices

This presentation delves into practical methodologies for identifying and addressing these gaps, including leveraging advanced technologies, establishing robust data collection frameworks, and implementing cross-functional collaboration. Attendees will explore best practices to enhance data quality, ensure alignment with reporting standards like CSRD, and create actionable insights to support sustainability goals. Learn how to transform data challenges into opportunities for transparency, accountability, and value creation in ESG initiatives.
